Interact-TV Announces 1080 Video Output Across the Telly Product Line

Westminster, CO., March 10, 2008 – Interact-TV™ (OTC: ITVI), the leading developer of Linux-based Home Entertainment Servers, today announces 1080 video output and DVI/HDMI support across its entire product line of Telly Home Entertainment Servers™ and TellyVizion™ Playback Units.

With HDTV sales in the US expected to reach 180 million by 2010, Interact-TV supports consumers by offering a complete set of HD output formats across the Telly product line. Interact-TV now offers DVI/HDMI connections for 1080p as well as 720p and 1080i Component video output. This allows Telly products to upscale 480i (standard TV) and DVDs to full HD resolution with progressive scan output. Telly products are compatible with most satellite and digital cable boxes, analog cable and digital antenna (ATSC).

Starting from $899, Telly products deliver everything consumers expect from a true media server, including complete PVR capabilities with pause live TV, comprehensive Video Library with integrated DVD server and cover art navigation, Music Library with integrated audio server and Lossless Audio Encoding, Photo Library, web surfing and more. And Telly products support a wide range of consumers; from the novice who only needs 160GB of storage to record their favorite TV shows and save a few DVDs and music CDs to the home theater enthusiast who needs 3.75 terabytes of storage to save over 700 DVDs and still have room for hundreds of recorded programs and thousands of music CDs and digital photos.

“We designed Telly to be a great companion to people who love digital media. We continue to develop our product line to support both our existing customers and new ones,” stated Ken Fuhrman, CEO of Interact-TV. “This new release underscores our commitment to provide a growth path for our customers so they won’t outgrow their investment in Telly as technology moves forward.”
